Below these, there are input fields for 'Birthday' (with dropdowns for Month, Day, and Year), 'Username', 'Email', 'Password', and 'Retype Password'. A checkbox for 'I agree to the Terms of Service' is present, along with a blue 'Sign Up' button.

With Quizlet you can create study sets for vocabulary. You can use it as a review game. You can create classes for your students and organize all your study sets into one class that students can use to study. You can search the database of quizlet and find other study topics.

Once you create a study set, students have these options.

The image shows the Quizlet interface for a study set titled 'Cyberbullying Vocab' by user 'zeemak'. The interface includes a search bar, a 'Create a Study Set' button, and a user profile. Below the title, there are sections for 'STUDY' (Flashcards, Learn, Speller, Test) and 'PLAY' (Scatter, Space Race). A 'TOOLS' section includes Edit, Add to Class, Add to Folder, Share, Print, and More. The main content area shows a list of terms with their definitions and interactive options (star, speaker, edit, delete). The terms listed are: embarrassing (Causing shame or uneasiness), social network (A website where people connect with friends and family), screen name (Names people use online), anonymous (Unknown), and text message (A written message sent by cellular phone). A video player is visible on the right side of the interface.

You have the option to print out hard copies of the test that quizlet generates and the study cards.

*Students do not need an account to use your study cards. Just provide them with a link like this.
